Second Annual Soul of the Soil Conference

Sept. 5-6, 2025

Sinsinawa, WI - Are you ready to dig deep into what it really means to care for land, food, and community? Join Fields of Sinsinawa for the second annual Soul of the Soil Conference, a gathering of farmers, land stewards, educators, learners, and changemakers committed to healing soil—and the systems that shape our relationship with it.

Date: Sept. 5&6, 2025

Location: 585 County Rd. Z, Sinsinawa, WI 53824

Hosted by: Fields of Sinsinawa

Through outdoor field demos, thought-provoking keynotes and workshops, and farmer-led dialogue, this conference will explore regenerative agriculture not just as a practice, but as a movement rooted in science, interconnectivity, and transformation.

Speaker sessions include the following plus many more:

- Anne Biklé, who will share insights about the connection between farm management practices and food quality from her book What Your Food Ate
- Kelly and Deanna Lozensky, diversified crop farmers from Max, ND, who have slashed synthetic inputs on their farm and learned to nurture native biology
- Inga Witscher, host of Around the Farm Table, who will discuss how she transitioned from a conventional dairy operation to a thriving micro creamery producing specialty cheeses

Whether you're a grower, activist, lifelong learner, or just soil-curious—this event is for you. Tickets are on sale now here.
